Injury Management Consultant

- Lower South Island

- Location options include Dunedin, Alexandra, Timaru & Invercargill
- Regular travel required between the above areas and nationally as required

With your excellent relationship building skills, you will develop the injury management capability of employers to facilitate a lasting change in return to work outcomes.

Your excellent networking skills are important as you address each employer's specific needs, in the form of one-on-one meetings with employers, training sessions, workshops or presentations to relevant industry or employer groups. Travel is regularly needed to enable you to achieve these great outcomes.

Your good business acumen will allow you to understand each employer's business needs enabling you to provide injury management services and resources that work for them.

A tertiary qualification in health related disciplines, as well as previous experience in injury management, business, occupational health and/or human resource management, is preferable.

You've achieved a lot in your career to date – now it's time to be rewarded for your hard work. At ACC we're big on challenge, support and opportunity, so if that's what you're craving, it's time we talked. We think you'll be very surprised just how much we have waiting for you here.
