HEALTH AND SAFETY TECHNICIAN

An exciting opportunity exists for a motivated paramedic or registered nurse who has a passion for Health and Safety, and enjoys dealing with people on a daily basis.

The Health and Safety Technician supports and provides assistance to the Responsible Care® department Team Leaders and Health and Safety Advisors in the execution of all Responsible Care activities.

The key responsibilities for this role include ensuring that NZ facilities have comprehensive Safety and Health procedures, development and facilitation of the Methanex wellness and health promotion program, performing routine and task related medicals, drug and alcohol testing, delivering first aid training, assisting with site security and safety inductions, supporting the Contractor Safety Management System, rehabilitation support, working with employees to eliminate or reduce risk through identification of Health and Safety incidents and monitoring of compliance.

You will also be involved with Emergency Response both as a team member and by assisting with the ER team strategy initiatives.

In this diverse role, you will be actively involved in ensuring that a high degree of safety, health and well being is maintained at the NZ facilities. To achieve this you will have extensive experience in a similar role, preferably in the Oil and Gas or Petrochemical industry. You will have a collaborative working style along with strong time management and organisational skills. Your strong belief in the relevance of robust safety systems, in addition to a sound knowledge of OH&S, will contribute to your success in this role.
